

Prepaid Reviews Launches the First Pay as You Go Phone Focused Podcast

Prepaidreviews.com announced today the launch of The Prepaid Podcast, a new monthly podcast and the first podcast aimed specifically at the prepaid wireless industry.

Guelph, ON (PRWeb) April 29, 2008 -- Prepaid Reviews, the leading resource for information and reviews on prepaid cellular, announced today that it has officially entered the world of podcasting and is bringing the first prepaid mobile focused podcast show, The Prepaid Podcast, to the cellular industry.

"We have long been a leading resource for reviews of prepaid cellular providers and for news specific to the prepaid mobile industry. Launching a podcast seemed like the logical next step," says Joe Pawlikowski, Senior Editor of the Prepaidreviews.com website. "We're really pumped about not only doing our own podcast, but also about being the first prepaid focused podcast to hit the industry."

The first episode of The Prepaid Podcast, which is also available through iTunes, featured interviews with Yassine Yassine, Co-Founder and Executive Vice President of Page Plus Cellular and Brad Houser, Project Manager of Data Services at Cricket. In discussing upcoming episodes of The Prepaid Podcast, Prepaid Reviews said it plans to continue this trend by having interviews with industry experts on future shows. "We're glad to be the first prepaid mobile podcast, but now it is time to focus on being the best," offered Pawlikowski.

Established in 2005, Prepaid Reviews offers in-depth review information on 25+ of the top prepaid mobile phone providers and features 2000+ user contributed reviews on those same carriers as well as a quick comparison engine to compare the different providers. Additionally, the site provides coverage of the prepaid wireless industry as a whole by reporting on industry news and providing original interviews and coverage through their frequently updated blog. The site continues to achieve increasing popularity as the top destination for information on prepaid cellular carriers.
